Coleman lost another oldtimer who passed away in an Edmonton hospital after a long illness in the person of William Fraser, 79.

Born in Lanarkshire, Scotland the deceased came to Canada settling in Coleman in 1906. While here he worked as a miner in the McGillvery mine for a short time and then went to the International mine where he worked until his retirement in 1949.

He was a member of the Old Age Pensioners Association and a member of the Knights of Pythias a number of years ago.

He was predeceased by his wife in 1951 and a son, James in 1941.

Survivors include one son William, of Coleman, two daughters, Mrs. E. Bernard of Coleman and Mrs. F. Vejprava of Frank and two brothers, Alex of Calgary and Thomas of Scotland.

Funeral services were conducted from St. Paul's United Church Monday, April 7, with the Rev. R. MacAuley officiating. Interment in the Union Cemetery.

C.G.I.T. Holds Rally In Blairmore

Many Coleman girls attended the Explorer and CGIT Rally held in Blairmore United Church last recently.

Twelve Explorers and their leaders attended the Rally after school. A Leader's Workshop and Pot Luck Supper was held from 6 to 7:30 p.m.

Sixteen CGIT girls attended the Rally from 7:30 to 9:30 p.m.

Miss Audrey Burns, Assistant Field Secretary of Girls' Work in the United Church for Alberta, led the Rally.

New songs, folk dancing, handicrafts and worship made up the program. Lunch was served by the Coleman girls to close the evening's agenda.

Blairmore and Bellevue were also well represented at the gatherings. Leaders attending were Mrs. R. B. Laine, Mrs. R. Upton, Mrs. M. Dunford, Mrs. A. McKay, Mrs. F. Radford, Mrs. M. Erickson, Mrs. V. Maniquet, Mrs. G. Avelardo and Mrs. N. Quintillo.

The stream behind your home may be a delightful spot in summer but right now it is a death-trap for your children. The warm spring sun is weakening the ice and death lurks on every inch of it. Your Red Cross asks parents to warn their children of this danger.

In a decade British Columbia's population has increased nearly 40 per cent.

Pass Couple Celebrate Fiftieth Anniversary

(Courtesy The Lethbridge Herald)

Mr. and Mrs. Tom Price, sr., of Bellevue celebrated their fiftieth wedding anniversary at their home in Bellevue recently. For the occasion about thirty close friends and members of the family gathered at the old-timers' home and enjoyed an evening of sing song, reminiscing and other entertainment, after which a buffet lunch was served.

During the evening Mr. and Mrs. Price's daughter, Ethel, Mrs. J. Kostelnik of Coleman, presented them with a purse of money on behalf of those present, after which Mrs. Kostelnik sang "Bless This House".

Mr. and Mrs. Price received congratulations from friends here in Winnipeg, Vancouver and Port Alberni, B. C. The happy couple were presented with a corsage and boutonniere for the party which was sent to the old couple by their only great-grandchild, Ellen Mary Kostelnik of Winnipeg.

Mr. Price, 71 years of age, was born in Lancashire, England, coming to Canada in 1904. He and Mrs. Price were married in Sydney, Nova Scotia, on March 20, 1908.

After living in Nova Scotia for two years the couple moved west to Nichols in 1910 and a year later to Hillcrest where they remained until the early 1930's. They then moved to Bellevue where they have resided since.

Mr. Price has worked in the coal mines all his life, starting his mining career in England at the age of nine. He retired about five years ago.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Price are enjoying perfect health.

The couple have six sons, Richard of Duncan, B. C.; Walter of Bellevue; Harold, of Pembroke, Ontario; Tom of Port Alberni, B. C.; Jack, serving with the RCAF at Chesholm; and Bobby in Port Alberni, B. C.; three daughters, (Ethel) Mrs. J. Kostelnik of Coleman; (Edith) Mrs. Ralph Watson of Port Alberni; and (Audrey) Mrs. Henry Hardy of Lethbridge; 17 grandchildren and one great-grandchild. A daughter Lillian passed away in Bellevue in 1939.

Police Chief Issues Warning

Chief Constable E. Corson informed The Journal that there is an outbreak of careless observance of traffic signs and regulations here in Coleman.

It appears that the Stop Signs erected are for decoration purposes only; but 11 motorists found out to their regret that this is no case last week.

Another regulation being constantly broken is turning around in the middle of the block rather than at the intersections as prescribed by law.

Chief Corson stated that he will crack down on all offenders and that the traffic laws of Coleman will be enforced to the limit.

He had one good word for morning citizens and that there is a noticeable improvement in regard to the speed limit and he hopes that the other laws he has mentioned will receive the same consideration without a concerted effort on behalf of the police department.

Post Office Window Broken; Dog Blamed

The large window in the front of Coleman's Post Office was broken last week and it was all caused by a dog, or so we are told.

It appears that one of Coleman's male citizens was strolling along and not noticing that one of the canine species was resting in front of the window. The course of his stroll caused him to step on the dog's tail, to which the dog took offence, and proceeded to yelp, plus a little nip of the gentleman's leg.

The astonished stroller jumped and struck the window, which in turn broke under the strain.

There seems to be a moral in this case. Watch Where You Are Going.

Red Cross To Hold Blood Clinic

GIVE BLOOD TO SAVE A LIFE

A Red Cross blood donor clinic will be held in the Crows Nest Pass Municipal Hospital on Thursday, April 17 from 1:30 p.m. to 3:00, and again in the evening from 6:00 to 9:00 p.m.

In the past the people of the Crows Nest Pass have contributed generously and it is sincerely hoped that they will do so again.

Every 15 minutes someone in Alberta requires a blood transfusion. There is no substitute for blood.

Only YOU and people like you can provide this life-saving miracle fluid.

Your blood is needed by the Red Cross. Attend the blood donor clinic on April 17.

Elks Hold Easter Bingo

Despite the nasty damp weather a good crowd attended the Elks Bingo on Thursday evening. However no one was lucky enough to take home the $120 jackpot. This makes the jackpot at the next bingo $130 to be won in 57 numbers.

Turkey, Mrs. J. George, Sheets and pillow cases, Mrs. H. Nelson.

Luggage, Mrs. S. Tarabula.

Hair, Mrs. A. Sykatek and Mrs. S. Ondrus, split.

$96 cash, six number bingo — no winner.

Consolation prize of five gallons of gas or four quarts of oil, K. Noble.

$25 cash, Mrs. R. Perry, Mrs. J. Yeliga and Mrs. Zak, split.

Turkey, D. Squarek, Bellevue.

Blankets (2) split by W. Brown and E. Gudmundson.

Hostess chair, F. Poch, Frank.

Consolation winners were, J. Yeliga, Mrs. G. McCullough, Mrs. L. Caroe, Mrs. S. Rypien and Mrs. W. Flewlich.

The six number bingo on the next bingo night, Friday, April 18, will be worth $102 — a prize worth trying for.

Speed And Drinking Take Heavy Toll On Highways

Excessive speed was the basic cause of four out of 10 traffic fatalities last year, according to the All Canada Insurance Federation.

Officials of the Federation which represents more than 200 fire, automobile and casualty insurance companies in Canada, says that speeding, together with drinking and driving on the wrong side of the road, account for nearly 80 per cent of all automobile deaths.

Many automobile accidents occur at night, particularly during spring and summer when motorists undertake longer trips.

Driving experts recommend the following rules for night driving:

1—Break long trips into easy stages.

2—Do not drive when overtired; stop for coffee or a short nap.

3—Effects of many "wake-up" pills may be unsafe for drivers.

4—Night driving requires slower speed than day-time driving when visibility is good.

5—Pump your brakes several times to give drivers a good warning when you are about to stop.

6—Always dim headlights when approaching or following other cars.

7—Pull well off the highway if you must stop for repairs or other reasons; do not get out of the car on the driver's side.

8—Always carry flashlight or flares to warn other drivers of your position in an emergency.

9—Never travel with too many people in the car.

Former Coleman Girl Wed In Great Falls

A marriage of interest to Coleman residents took place in the Methodist Church in Great Falls, Montana, on Thursday, March 20.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Coover of Coleman, and the groom is William Thomas of Calgary.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride chose a grey two-piece suit with white accessories. Her corsage was pink sweetheart roses entwined with white satin ribbon.

The double ring ceremony was performed by the former pastor of Knox United Church, Calgary.

Attending the couple were Mr. and Mrs. Fred Dial, cousins of the bride.

Following the ceremony the couple left on a honeymoon in Salt Lake City, Utah, and other United States points, before returning to Calgary to reside, where the groom is employed.

Ripple Rock blast heard and seen around the world

Coleman radio and TV enthusiasts, along with possibly the entire North American continent, were privileged to see and hear on Saturday probably one of the greatest man-made explosions of all time (with the possible exception of Hiroshima) when men of science attempted to remove one of Nature's greatest obstacles to modern-day ocean-going shipping.

The Journal for the past several weeks has carried publicity in connection with the plans to remove Ripple Rock from the Seymour Narrows, something that has been desired by men of the sea for the past 100 years or more.

These two pinnacles which sit in the centre of the Narrows had brought disaster to more than 20 ocean going vessels and loss of life to more than 100 people—this was Nature at work. At certain stages of the tide even the most skilled mariners had difficulty in braving their ships through with even a small margin of safety.

Seafaring men had complained loud and long over the years and as a result many attempts had been made to remove this menace of the sea by blasting from the top.

At these feeble attempts Nature sneered.

In 1955 men of knowledge in scientific blasting decided the only way to remove these twin peaks was to go to the "bottom" of the trouble, with the result that hard-rock men of world-wide experience were called in to commence the drilling of a more than 2500-foot tunnel which would go underwater to a depth of hundreds of feet in order to plant the explosives in the most vital spot with the idea of blasting upwards so that the fall impact of the blast would be felt in the immediate vicinity of the two points.

Saturday, April 5, 1958 saw the realization of this dream of many come true. Up to the time of the blast great uncertainty existed as to just what measure of success could be expected, but with 2,750,000 pounds of high explosive strategically placed the best was hoped for, and the "best" is what they got.

At 10:30 approximately Saturday morning, April 5th the plunger was pushed to blast Ripple Rock into eternity and remove from Seymour Narrows a mental and physical hazard that has jeopardized the lives of men and ships for well over 100 years.

This was unquestionably one of the finest efforts of CBC TV to date and possibly of any television company anywhere, and congratulations are forthcoming from all to the men who handled the cameras and did the commentary while waiting for something—the outcome of which was unknown to the time of the actual blast.

Our hats are off to the gentlemen of science, the radio and TV crews for one of the finest "live" spectacles we will witness in a long time.

But Ripple Rock is gone.

DON'T let your child make the headlines as a drowning fatality. Tell him now the dangers that lurk near the water at this time of the year.

Headlamp Aiming Is Easy with New Device

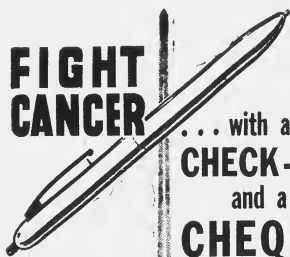

Mother can aim the headlamps on the family car today just about as fast as a trained mechanic does it with new mechanical aimers developed by the headlamp manufacturers. She can do it in less than five minutes, and accurately, too! Here, Mrs. R. B. Baile, wife of the Manitoba Commissioner of Motor Vehicles, and her daughter Nancy, prove the point. They were prize winners in a headlamp aiming contest sponsored by the Automobile Manufacturers Association at a recent conference of the American Association of Motor Vehicle Administrators in Roanoke, Virginia. The contest emphasized the importance of having headlamps aimed properly for safe night driving.

SUNDAY DRIVER

I confess to being one of those dawdling Sunday drivers you get-there-in-a-hurry motorists cuss about. If you see a station wagon loaded with kids poking along the highway on a Sunday afternoon, don't cuss at us too hard. We'll be off the highway and onto a side road as soon as a good one appears; meanwhile, even from the highway, the countryside is good to look at and we're gawkers from away back.

We don't plan our drives in detail, just the general direction. We start out early in the afternoon, knowing that we'll wind up in some small town for a meal about six o'clock, and a leisurely drive back home just in time for the twins to get to bed by nine. That small-town meal appeals to them, even when the cooking isn't perfect. It's the adventure that pleases them; and my wife enjoys almost any meal when she's free of the dishes afterwards.

We've often tried to figure out why we are such a gypsy-like family when week-ends roll around. On the humdrum week days we are stay-at-homes, even our teen-agers. But the itch for motoring starts Friday and by Sunday afternoon we're eager to be off.

We take it easy. The kids like to pull up beside the road, toss gravel stones at poplar trees, or snap some pictures of anything that happens to be handy. We watch for birds or rabbits, tell stories, crack jokes and sometimes climb a farmer's fence to look at cattle, sheep or horses. Dogs that have come raging down a road to chew our tires have been surprised to have us stop, doors fly open and a horde of youngsters rush at him. It is surprising how quickly the angry snarls and barks change to delighted tail-wagging.

Sometimes I find myself wondering, after one of these country excursions, about human values. Certainly my youthful plans for success didn't include Sunday afternoon dawdling over country roads, with a carload of athletic, noisy youngsters. Yet when I take stock of the really good things life has given me, those country jaunts are near the top. And I thank God I was lucky enough to be born in a free and prosperous country where a man of modest means can own a car and take his family for Sunday outings.

We don't realize, sometimes, how fortunate we are.

OF MANY THINGS

(By Ambrose Hills)

AND NOW CHICAGO

A millionaire from Texas tried to dominate a Canadian pipeline project, but Canadians finally caught on and were so annoyed they fired one federal government over the deal and urged a new one to clean it up fast. We're fond of Americans, but we rightly refuse to be exploited by them. Another American, this time from the Big Labor movement, doesn't realize this.

I refer to the boss of the Firemen's Union, a Mr. H. E. Gilbert of Cleveland, who, according to press despatches, has called a big meeting in Chicago this month to "deal with a campaign by Canadian railroads to eliminate firemen-helpers from diesel-electric locomotives." What Mr. Gilbert ought to be told is that we are capable of dealing with the diesel dispute ourselves; in fact, we have already dealt with it, and any American interference is an insult.

First we had a Federal Conciliation Board study the dispute. They ruled firemen not needed. Mr. Gilbert announced, from Cleveland, a strike. We then appointed, with the agreement of all political parties, a Royal Commission. That Royal Commission was praised by our own Canadian Labor Congress for its fairness. It, too, found firemen are definitely not needed. It said the railroad was extremely generous in protecting each man's job.

Now it would have been understandable and useful for the Firemen's Union of the United States to call a meeting to help the Canadian union leaders adjust to changes. But that is not the purpose. Instead, union boss Gilbert has the gall to announce that he has, according to the despatches, "rejected the Report as grossly prejudicial, because it completely ignores the position taken by the employees and follows the company's proposals to an alarming degree."

Well, when an American, whether Big Labor or Big Business, chooses to challenge the integrity of three of Canada's most respected judges, he leaves himself open to our resentment. If he thinks a big Chicago meeting, with only a handful of Canadian representatives, can decide the fate of our transportation or inflict on us unnecessary costs of more than $20 millions a year, he underestimates us considerably.

We are all eager to be friendly with United States. Surely it is time they realized that we are a friendly ally NOT an economic colony. This goes for both American business and for American labor.

We don't want to be dominated by either.

23 Ways To Help Reduce Your Income Tax

A list of 23 tips on how Canadians may reduce their income tax is offered by John Dalrymple in the current Liberty magazine.

1—There's a new, optional $100 deduction for everyone this year. You can claim this standard deduction of $100 for all medical expenses, charitable donations and union dues, without submitting receipts or you can claim more, if you are entitled, and submit receipts in the old way.

2—You may now include in your medical expenses, payment for full time care in a nursing home of a mentally-retarded dependent.

3—This year, you may deduct your contributions up to $1500 a year, as an employee, to a registered pension fund. If you are not part of a pension fund, you may deduct premiums, up to 10 per cent of your income, that you pay to a registered retirement savings plan to a maximum of $2500.

4—Ordinarily, if you are not in business, you need not report bond interest. If you do not clip the coupons on bearer bonds that year. The coupons are income only the year you clip and cash them. Many leave coupons unclipped during years they have high income (and a high tax rate). They save them to cash in years their income (and tax) is lower. Bank interest or other investment income must be reported.

5—If you became 65 years of age last year you are entitled to an extra $500 exemption from now on.

6—If married on the last day of the year, you will still rate the full year's $1000 exemption for your wife. She is taxed for that year as a single person.

7—Make sure your babies are born in December; you still rate the full $150 exemption. And if your child, say at 16, gets a job, he won't have time to earn enough that year to rob you of your full exemption then.

8—Invest in taxable Canadian corporations. As they pay taxes before they divide up profits, you are entitled to a deduction of 20 per cent of the dividends you collect.

9—If you live or work in the province of Quebec you get a 10 per cent deduction, because of Quebec's provincial income tax.

10—Make sure your kids don't earn more than $950 a year. You'll lose them as exemptions.

11—If you support your aged parents, or infirm brothers and sisters, you're entitled to some exemption. You can claim them as dependents, provided they don't earn more than $950 a year.

12—If you are separated, get together with your ex-spouse, to decide which children each of you will claim as dependents. If you both claim the same child, the Tax Department may deny both of you the exemption.

13—If you are divorced, or legally separated, your alimony payments are deductible.

14—A girl who attends school, and gets married the same year, can be claimed as a dependent by both her parents and her husband. The parents claim the dependent's $400 exemption. The husband gets the wife's $1000 exemption.

15—If you rented rooms in your home you can deduct a portion of the taxes, insurance and maintenance costs from your income. Example: If you rent two of your eight rooms, you can deduct one-quarter of the maintenance costs.

16—Don't count Unemployment Insurance, Family Allowance, Work mens Compensation, dividends from a life insurance policy, or war disability pensions as taxable income.

17—If you inherit money from the capital of an estate, it's not taxable, but if you inherit income from an estate, you must pay tax.

18—If you receive payments on a mortgage, only the portion of them that represents the interest you are charging for the loan is taxable.

19—Provided you are not a "professional" gambler, your winnings at race tracks or bingo games are not taxable.

20—If you get advice from a professional investment counsellor, before you buy stocks and bonds, you can deduct half the fees you pay him. But you cannot deduct the commission you pay the broker to buy them.

21—If you became totally blind any time last year, or were confined to bed or wheel chair for an entire year, through illness or injury, you are entitled to a $500 deduction.

22—If you have a working wife who earns more than $1,000, while you have a considerably larger income, you may save money by letting her pay all the medical bills, and claim them on her tax. As the 3 per cent of income that must be subtracted from medical expenses will be smaller on her return, the deduction she can claim will be greater.

23—If you hire an accountant to advise you what tax deductions you are entitled to claim, you can deduct his fees from your income, too.

Setback for the Macmillan Govt.

Prime Minister Macmillan's Conservative party in Britain suffered its third straight bye-election defeat within the past several weeks when a Liberal candidate won in Torrington. The 219-vote victory by Liberal Mark Bonham Carter over his Conservative opponent, with Labor trailing in third place, has thrown a scare in the government.

Some newspapers claimed many voters are fed up with both Britain's major parties. The Liberal Manchester Guardian said: "The Liberals are at the beginning of a long and stiff climb. Its prize asset at present is that people are sick of both the main parties. A moderating influence is what many people want. It is exactly what the Liberal group in the House of Commons has become."

Although the Liberals have only six members in the Commons, Conservatives fear that any mass Liberal turnout in the next general elections would split the non-Socialist vote and put the Labor party back in office.

The London Times, Independent, declares: "there is ample evidence that the Liberal's broad attitude to the social issues of the day is evoking a measure of support which goes far beyond mere dissatisfaction with the records of the two main parties in office."

Blitz Drive
Planned In Crows Nest Area

Decision to hold a Blitz campaign was reached at a meeting of the Crows Nest Pass branch of the Canadian Drive Society.

The drive for funds will get under way April 14th.

In Coleman the canvass will be directed by John Owen, in Hillcrest the Pythian Sisters, the Catholic Women's League and Women of the Moose Lodge, in Bellevue, high school students will canvass the town, while in Blairmore the Lions Club and Board of Trade will canvass the area.

Mrs. J. Poch and Miss A. Pozzi of Frank will take charge of the campaign in this area.

In The Army

Thousands of members of the regular army serving in Canada, will have new "bonnets" in time for the Easter Parade this year.

A new colored forage cap, promised them some time ago by the army, is now being issued. The cap, with a stiff peak, is similar in design to the regular army officer's dress cap.

Regular army units of all Commands (except Central Command, Ontario), and the 4th Canadian Infantry Brigade (Germany) already have received their supplies of the new headress. Central Command soldiers and troops overseas will have to wait a few more weeks for their forage caps. The delay, according to an ordnance supply officer, is attributed to production difficulties, which have since been improved.

Designed to improve the appearance of junior ranks of the army on ceremonial parades and when "walking out", the new cap will, in most cases, replace the familiar forest green worn by soldiers.

Units or corps of the army will continue to wear the summer field cap and winter peaked cap when training.

The new forage caps will be dark blue in color for most units; the exceptions being the Queen's Own Rifles of Canada and Princess Patricia's Canadian Light Infantry.

Their new forage caps will be a dark green in color. The regiment of Canadian Guards will continue to wear the traditional Guards forage cap, and the Black Watch will wear their Highland headress as usual.

The forage caps will have distinctive colored bands and, in all cases, the soldier will wear the appropriate color of his corps or regiments.

Blairmore Man
Remanded After
Admitting Guilt

Three young men who police said had slept in a car for several nights in Lethbridge, appeared in city police court on charges of vagrancy and carrying an offensive weapon.

Ronald H. Girasek of Blairmore, was remanded to Monday for sentence after pleading guilty to a charge of carrying the offensive weapon.

Joseph Tolin of Lethbridge, and Theodore Pire of Blairmore were each placed on two years' suspended sentence with probation, after pleading guilty to charges of vagrancy.

Court was told the three were found in a car in the city Tuesday evening. They had no money, or support.

In his possession Girasek had a bicycle chain with a grip handle attached to it. He also had a pistol cigarette case which was believed never to have been used, and a birth certificate which was not his own.

E. L. Vance
Interior Lumbermen

Eight Kootenay lumbermen were named to the executive of the Interior Lumber Manufacturers Association at the annual convention at Penikese last week.

E. L. Vance, vice-president and sales manager of Kootenay Forest Products of Nelson is president and A. O. Lloyd of Canoe, B. C. vice-president. A. D. MacDonald of Penikese, is secretary-manager.

Kootenay men named to the board of directors are retiring president G. W. Eriksson of Knight Lumber Co., Crows Nest Pass; D. W. Brookes of Celgar Ltd., Castlegar; E. Cooke of Cooke Lumber Co., Greenwood; W. Jostad, Cranbrook Carriage and Transfer Co., Cranbrook; B. C. C. G. McMillan, Boundary Sawmills, Midway; H. Nelson, Canada Cedar Poles Processors, Galloway, and B. Neville

Smith, Creston Sawmills Limited, Creston.

Declining markets, falling prices and the possibility of higher wage demands from employees left lumbermen facing difficult decisions this year, was the consensus of the meetings.

Mr. Eriksson said that "most industries have experienced a recession where profits have taken a plunge mostly due to market conditions and higher production costs. Our industry and our members are no exception. In fact, the lumber industry has been harder hit and for a longer period, than any other."

The association represents about 80 lumber firms in the southern interior.

Canadian wheat to China

About 350,000 bushels of Canadian wheat are to be shipped from the west coast to China this month—Canada's first cash wheat sale to the Communist country.

Price of the 10,000-ton cargo was not given with the announcement. Federal trade officials said there is no reason to believe it would be below the current quotation.

Winnipeg grain circles said it is No. 3 Northern wheat, a top milling grade which has a Vancouver price of $1.65 3/4 a bushel in storage.
